Jersey is a popular place to establish an asset holding company because the Law is modern, flexible and modelled on English companies legislation.

This guide looks at the key things you need to know about the audit requirements for a company under the Law.

Words in bold text are defined at the end of this guide.

Financial records and statements

For information on the requirements regarding financial records and statements for a company under the Law, see our guide Financial records and statements for Jersey companies (click here).

Requirement to audit accounts

A public company must appoint an auditor to examine and report on its accounts.

A private company is only required to appoint an auditor to examine and report on its accounts if its:

- articles of association require it do so; or
- shareholders require it to do so.

Appointment of auditor

Where a company is required to appoint an auditor, at each AGM, it must appoint an auditor to hold office until the conclusion of its next AGM.

At any time before a company holds its first AGM, the directors or shareholders may appoint an auditor to hold office until the conclusion of its first AGM.

If the shareholders of the company that is required to appoint an auditor decide not to hold AGMs, any auditor then in office:

- continues to act; and

- is taken to be reappointed for each succeeding financial period until the conclusion of the next AGM or the shareholders decide to terminate the auditor's appointment.

If a company that has decided not to hold AGMs:

- becomes required to appoint an auditor; and
- there is no auditor in office,

the directors must appoint an auditor to act until the conclusion of the next AGM.

The directors or shareholders may fill any vacancy in the office of auditor and fix the auditor's remuneration.

Who may be appointed auditor?

A company may only appoint as its auditor:

- (if it is a market traded company) a recognised auditor; or
- (if it is not a market traded company) a:
  - qualified person; or
  - person authorised by the JFSC to carry out an audit of the company.

A person who acts as auditor is also required to be independent of the company. Consequently, a person cannot act as auditor if the person has personal relationships within the company.

A person who does not satisfy the applicable qualification requirements must not act as an auditor. It is an offence for a person to do so, and on conviction, the person is liable for up to two years imprisonment, a fine or both.

In the case of a market traded company, an audit carried out by a person who is not a recognised auditor is of no effect.

Auditor's powers

The Law gives an auditor the right to:

- access a company's records at any time;
- require any information or explanation deemed necessary to perform their role from any:
  - director, secretary or employee of the company; and
  - person who holds or is accountable for any of the company's records and who appears to have the information;
- receive notice of and attend any meeting of shareholders and to speak on any part of the business of the meeting that concerns the auditor.

Auditor's duties

In preparing an audit report, an auditor must carry out any investigation that will enable the auditor to form an opinion as to whether:

- the company has kept proper accounting records;
- proper financial information adequate for the audit have been received from branches not visited by the auditor; and
- the company's accounts agree with its accounting records and financial information.

An auditor must state in an audit report:

- that a company has not complied with the requirements regarding accounting records and financial information mentioned above where the auditor believes this to be the case; and
- any failure to obtain any information or explanation that was, to the best of the auditor's knowledge and belief, necessary for the audit.

An auditor of a market traded company must keep all working papers relating to an audit in English and make them available on request to:

- the JFSC;
- any recognised professional body; or
- any professional oversight body.

Auditor's report

An auditor must make a report to a company's shareholders on the accounts of the company examined by the auditor. The report must:

- state whether, in the opinion of the auditor, the accounts:
  - have been prepared in accordance with the Law; and
  - give a true and fair view or, alternatively, are presented fairly in all material respects;
- state the name of the auditor;
- mention any failure to obtain from the company any information or explanation that (to the best of the auditor's knowledge and belief) was necessary for the audit; and
- be dated and signed by:
  - (if the auditor is an individual) that individual; and
  - (if the auditor is a firm) the individual responsible for examining and reporting on the accounts on behalf of the firm.

The fact that an auditor's report is signed by an individual does make the individual subject to any civil liability, to which the individual would not otherwise be liable.

Removal of auditor

A company may remove an auditor despite anything in the engagement letter between it and the auditor. The removal of an auditor does not deprive an auditor of the right to compensation or damages for loss of office.

Resignation of auditor

An auditor may resign from office by sending to a company's registered office a:

- notice of resignation; and
- statement:
  - that there are no circumstances regarding the auditor's resignation that the auditor considers should be brought to the notice of the company's shareholders or creditors; or
  - (if there are any circumstances of that kind) which sets out those circumstances.

If a company receives a statement that there are circumstances regarding the auditor's resignation that the auditor considers should be brought to the notice of its shareholders or creditors, it must send a copy of the statement to each shareholder, and person entitled to receive notice of a meeting of shareholders, within 14 days of receiving the statement.

It is an offence if the company fails to do so, and on conviction, the company and its directors are liable to a fine.

An auditor's resignation takes effect on the date it is received at the company's registered office or, the date specified in the resignation (if later than when received).
